

said about my self-composure in the courtroom. I believe this is due to the fact that I not only do not fear the outcome of my trial, but long for the verdict.

No Glamour in Lights.

"Now, about my future: I am not going to return to the stage under any circumstances. I have no longing for the footlights. The gay lights of Broadway have lost their attraction for me. When I leave this prison I shall go to my parents in Washington.

"I am overwhelmed with desire to see my mother. I am full of gratitude to my daddy, who has stood by me, suffered with me and cheered me when I needed cheer worse than ever before in my life. I want to forget the past; I want to bury it beyond resurrection, and I think the best way to do that is to return to the home of my parents.

"I don't want to speak about my sufferings, because that might seem as if I were appealing for sympathy, which is the last thing I want to do. But if those persons who have watched my apparently calm demeanor in court knew what was passing through my heart, they would marvel still more over my ability to bear up under the strain.

"I believe I have experienced the height of human love, none the less in the accusation which has been made against me, but in being compelled to see those whom I love and who love me suffer under the same terrible charges which have been uttered against me.

Offers No Reproaches.

"However, I have not one word of reproach to utter against anyone; I shall bear up during the remainder of the trial as I have in the last two days, believing everything will turn out right, and hoping some day to be able to repay in some small measure my parents and friends who have stood by me during this terrible ordeal."

There were several seemingly important developments in the trial of Nan Patterson before Justice Vernon M. Davis before the end of yesterday's proceedings.

It was said a new witness had been found by the defense who would go on the stand and corroborate the evidence given by Milton W. Hazleton of Oneonta, who says he saw Young kill himself. When the story was traced to its source, it was found the hope of a new witness turning up was based on a letter written to Abraham Levy, counsel for Miss Patterson, in which the writer said he had seen the tragedy in the cab. The letter was in German and contained a signature, but no address. Mr. Levy said he would try to find the writer.

The second development was the statement of one of the talesmen, who when called said he wished to speak with Justice Davis. The talesman was Archibald J. C. Anderson, and he told Justice Davis he thought he was not qualified to act as juror because he had what appeared to be a mental infirmity in regard to the information he possessed. Anderson said he had a son who knew a girl whose brother had told her she knew a girl who had a brother who had seen Young shoot himself. The talesman was excused.

Prosecution's Vain Hunt.

Assistant District Attorney Rand says Mr. Levy is starting out on a fruitless hunt, as the same story came to him, and county detectives, after two months of investigation, reported that every man they had seen in connection with it said he had a friend who had a friend who knew a friend, etc., who had seen the shooting. The list of friends seemed interminable, and the detectives were unable to get down to the original friend.

None of the men examined said the character of the woman would prejudice him against her, but most of the talesmen had other reasons why they thought they could not serve.

Of those who were willing to enter the jury box some were unsatisfied to the prosecution, others did not meet with the approval of the defense.

Several times, when the lawyers on both sides were ready to accept a talesman, he failed to qualify because of the request of Miss Patterson, who asked her lawyer to challenge peremptorily.

what disposition to make of the money. He still has it and said this afternoon he did not know whether or not the policemen would get the money, as that was for Major Sylvester to determine.

Hopes to Strengthen Amity.

Following is a statement made by Mr. Sato, at the prince's request: "Since the arrival in this country, my imperial highness has been deeply impressed with good will and courteous attention universally shown him by the people of the United States. Genuine sympathy for Japan entertained by them in her present struggle is a source of profound satisfaction to his imperial highness, and he hopes earnestly that his mission of friendship and good will may in some measure, be conducive of strengthening that tie of amity and good correspondence which happily exist between the two countries. His imperial highness especially feels grateful to the President of the United States, who, representing, as he does, the sentiment of the people of this great republic, has extended to him a most cordial welcome, and his imperial highness does not hesitate to say that the unalloyed pleasure he has already derived from his visit to this country, would far outweigh that of his military achievements in the battlefields of Manchuria."

MIKADO'S GIFTS TEAK CHESTS

Before leaving the city for Mount Vernon yesterday, Prince Fushimi sent to Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Hay, each a gift from the Mikado, in the form of large teak wood chests mounted in solid silver and of great value as pieces of artistic workmanship.

The chests were eight feet in length, three feet wide, and about eighteen inches tall. While the exteriors were comparatively plain, the interiors were intricate mazes of drawers, boxes and small compartments of every conceivable size and shape, and each bearing some precious treasure from the rich storehouses of Japan.

Silks, embroideries, fans, carvings and other articles representing the most artistic workmanship of his countrymen were within. Sundries, cedar and teak wood, with inlayings of mother-of-pearl and metals, combined with different kinds of sweet odored woods entered into the ornamentation of the tops of all the receptacles in the chests.

The presentation to both Mrs. Roosevelt, who is still absent from the White House, and to Mrs. Hay was accompanied by notes of courtesy from the prince.

consul at Chefoo, tends to confirm the belief in many quarters that the Rastoromy's mission was significant of the end of Port Arthur.

JAPS INCENSED AGAINST CHINESE

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Central News' correspondent at Chefoo represents the Japanese as being incensed at the Chinese authorities, whom they accuse of conniving with the Russians to hoodwink the Japanese concerning the Russian destroyer Rastoromy, which was sunk by her commander in Chefoo harbor after a successful run from Port Arthur.

The Japanese also accuse the Chinese of allowing the ammunition, small arms and valuables from the Rastoromy to be deposited in the Russian consulate, although these have since been transferred to the Chinese cruiser Hai Yeng in consequence of the Japanese consul's protest.

Another ground of complaint is that the Chinese authorities are guarding the Russian consulate, the Hai Yeng has taken a position from which she is enabled to protect the consulate.

Rear Admiral Folger of the American Asiatic squadron has notified the Chinese that he will land marines if there is trouble.

POSTUM'S TRICK.

How It Worked Wonders In One Family.

"While I was a Tea and Coffee user about eighteen months ago I happened to pick up a piece of old newspaper and saw a letter some one had written about the gain in health by quitting tea and coffee and using Postum, and as I was suffering with indigestion and biliousness I decided perhaps Postum would fit my case, so I had Wife get a package next day and make some.

"I had been in the habit of taking cold lunches with a bottle of cold tea, but had become so bad I could not digest them, in fact I felt miserable after every meal. Well, I quit both tea and coffee and after commencing to use the Postum I began to feel better at once and have not had a bilious spell since and no more indigestion. I would be more than glad to find something that would make me prosper financially as that piece of old newspaper did physically.

"I know it was the cold tea that was causing the trouble and the Postum cured it.

"I want to tell you something about my wife's condition.

"She had been a long-time coffee drinker and her feet were swollen so badly that she could not have a shoe on one of her feet at all and sometimes not either of them, and suffered terribly with constipation. She was treated for kidney trouble but the treatment did her no good at all and she became perfectly discouraged. In a short while after we began to use Postum and quit tea and coffee she began to get better and now she is as good, healthy, and fine looking wife as you will find, and I will leave those who read this letter to judge for themselves what did it. I want to say right here we both are often asked what caused my wife's health to improve, and we never fail to tell them that it was using Postum in place of tea and coffee.

"We used to give our boy tea and coffee and he came out with a skin disease until his head was almost a mass of sores. We took away both tea and coffee and gave him what we drank—Postum and shortly the trouble left entirely, and all my children, like my wife and myself, are healthy and strong, and the best friends of Postum you ever saw.
